If you're looking for a traditional and truly authentic five-needle Japanese white pine bonsai then you've found it. This piece is 40-50 years old. The trunk are typical of MOYOGI style and the flaky, silvery bark is characteristic of pinus pentaphylla. Subtle jin have been carved on the branches and there are no major signs of wounds or cut branches. It was grown from a seedling and imported from the Ken FUJIWARA Nagoya nursery in Japan.

Picture shows the tree in October 2016.
